ABOUT US

Who We Are

The Philadelphia Live Arts Festival and Philly Fringe is an internationally recognized presenter of performing arts.

What We Do

We support the work of a broad array of performing artists from Philadelphia and around the world by producing two concurrent sixteen-day festivals each September in venues throughout Philadelphia. The 14th annual Philadelphia Live Arts Festival and Philly Fringe will take place from September 3 -18, 2010.

The Philadelphia Live Arts Festival

A collection of the world's best contemporary performing artists energize Philadelphia audiences each year during the Philadelphia Live Arts Festival. Selected by Nick Stuccio, the Festival's Producing Director, about half of these artists are based in Philadelphia, while others come in from across the globe.

In 2010, 15 Live Arts Festival shows will be presented.

The Philly Fringe

Philly Fringe is an unfiltered festival, where new and established artists present their work free of a selection process. For some it's a once-a-year, or once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to create a show; for professional companies, it can be an opportunity to try something new and join in the fray.

It's come one, come all! In 2009, 185 Philly Fringe shows were self-produced by artists from throughout the region. How many artists will participate in 2010 will be known in May.

ABOUT OUR AUDIENCES

Each year, the Festival sees more than 25,000 enthusiastic, loyal attendees.

Here's why you'll want to reach them with your advertising message:

Younger ticket buyers than most Arts Organizations

The Festival reaches both traditional arts audiences and the new generation of event-goers.

52% of our audiences are younger than 45.

Spending Power and the Smarts to Wield It

The average Festival audience member has a household income of nearly $80,000 a year.

48% have earned themselves a graduate degree.

Philadelphia Savvy

74% of Festival-goers have lived here for 3+ years.
